Introduction

Lo Shu grid is a 3 X 3 magic square in which the sum of the three numbers add up to 15 - row wise, column wise and diagonally.

This is an ancient Chinese grid that shows man's interaction with the five elements such as Earth, Water, Fire, Wood and Metal. Hsia Yu was a famous Chinese personality. One day he came across some very interesting markings on the shell of a giant tortoise. The giant tortoise came out from the River Lo in Central China. This became Lo Shu. The word 'Lo' means river and the term 'Shu' indicates books. Different Lo Shu numbers indicates different directions which are believed to be auspicious.

Using The Lo Shu Grid

The Lo Shu grid is created on the basis of the date of birth of an individual. It helps to give a clear view of what the destiny and the life has in store for that individual. The MB Feng Shui Lo Shu Software is an interactive program. It is very simple to use and interpret and it also gives remedial measures for the missing elements.

By entering the date of birth, the missing element and its effect on the concerned person is ascertained. Each digit in a person's birth date is associated with the corresponding element and the missing factor is known. Remedial measures to counter the lack of elements for the person are also suggested by the MB Feng Shui Lo Shu Software (<http://www.mysticboard.com/mb-free-feng-shui-lo-shu/>). Each of the squares that make up the Lo Shu is the palace and the three numbers in each palace are the Stars. The positions of the Stars in the Lo Shu indicate those areas of life which may be affected.
